Germans Fleeing Toward Mariupol After Rostov Rout

Reds Claim Greatest Nazi Reversals Since Invasion Was Launched by the Reich

Coinciding with Russian reports of the greatest German reversals since Adolf Hitler put "blitzkrieg" into the world's vocabulary, Japan voiced a preference today for further negotiations with the United States for peace in the Pacific in place of war.

What bearing the new turns in the Russian-German war had on the decision in Tokyo could not, of course, be precisely ascertained, but past Japanese action in the Far East has been so consistently tied up with major developments in the European war that today's step, it seemed, could not be mere coincidence.

The Japanese government had in the back of its mind, at least, Russia's recapture of Rostov, with the routing of the German invasion at that point apparently ending all Nazi hope of an immediate campaign into the Caucasus. In addition, there were the Russian reports of another great counter-offensive which has blunted the German spearheads piercing toward Moscow.

The Moscow radio, quoting Pravda, reported that a second counter-drive by southern Red forces threatened to cut off the Germans west of Rostov with a prospective thrust to the sea at Azov at their rear.

As if to escape the new threat, the Russian reports indicated the Germans were abandoning Taganrog, 40 miles west of Rostov, in favor of Mariupol, another 60 miles to the west.

LARGE NUMBER CITIES SHELLED IN R. A. F. RAIDS

Hamburg, Emden, Bremerhaven, Wilhelmshaven, Kiel and Lubeck Visited In First Big Invasion In a Month

ADMIT 20 PLANES LOST

London, Dec. 1.—(P)—The docks and shipyards of Hamburg were blasted by 150 tons of bombs dropped in bright moonlight by the RAF last night, and Emden, Bremerhaven, Wilhelmshaven, Kiel and Lubeck all in northwestern Germany, also were attacked, the British said today.

But it was admitted the night's raids, the first big ones since early November, cost the British twenty planes.

The air ministry said that the main attack was directed at Hamburg, paid its 54th visit by the RAF, and that large fires were set burning. Powerful results also were accomplished at the other points of attack, the communiqué said.

Low-level attacks on shipping off the Dutch coast resulted in hits on a tanker and several medium-sized supply ships, one of which was left sinking, the ministry said, and mines were dropped in German-used waters.

At least six ships were said by the air ministry to have been bombed by United States-built Hudson bombers of the Canadian air force one of which was piloted by Pilot Officer W. B. Cooper of St. Petersburg, Fla. Cooper said he bombed a small ship off Borkum but was unable to determine the results.

The admiralty announced that a British warship had sunk an armed German merchant raider in the south Atlantic November 22.

The announcement said "it was not practicable to pick up survivors" because the presence of a German submarine in the vicinity of the sinking had been detected.

The announcement said the German vessel attempted to escape behind a smokescreen after having (Turn To Page Nine)

EGYPTIAN DRIVE IS UNHALTED

British Forces Advancing Westward are Continuing Their Operations, Headquarters State, But Admit Enemy Infantry and Tanks Have Broken Rezegh Defenses

TOBRUK CAMPAIGN IS BELIEVED NEAR END

Cairo, Egypt, Dec. 1.—(P)—British forces which have driven westward beyond the hump of Libya are continuing their operations, British headquarters said today, but it acknowledged that German infantry and tanks have broken into the defenses of Rezegh.

In London an authoritative source declared that the British had counter-attacked German forces which penetrated their positions around Rezegh, and that "our position is re-established once more."

The report of a British counter-attack was said to be based on information later than that contained in the British Middle East communiqué at Cairo.

In the main sector of the 14-day-old desert struggle, the communiqué said, one Axis tank thrust from the west was repulsed south of Rezegh and British armored units, turning on Italy's "elite" "spearhead" division "destroyed about half the remaining tanks of this formation which then fled northward pursued by British mobile columns."

The British reported yesterday reaching the Mediterranean coast along the gulf of Sirte, behind Bengasi and Agadabia, more than 300 miles west from the Egyptian frontier and across the Axis' one supply road from Tripoli.

On that and the report that imperial forces are hacking down German-Italian strength in well-defined fighting areas, British observers confidently predicted final destruction of Axis remnants in the Tobruk sector within three days.

PARTY POLITICS CHARGED IN PLAN TO REDISTRICT

Harrisburg, Dec. 1.—(P)—A freshman assemblyman today charged Republicans with playing "party politics" on the question of congressional reapportionment and pleaded for action on the matter to eliminate the possibility "either the rural or urban sections of Pennsylvania will be without representation."

Joseph J. McIntosh, Cumberland county Democrat, declared he considered the move of G. O. P. senators and representatives in calling a caucus "and endorsing one plan, and one plan only, to be a breach of their duty to their constituents." (Turn To Page Two)

WOMAN PLUNGES 18 FLOORS TO HER DEATH

Philadelphia, Dec. 1.—(P)—Mrs. Marguerite Shiller, 40, plunged to death from the 18th floor of the Central Y. M. C. A. yesterday, less than six hours after her husband boarded a plane for Sault Sainte Marie, Mich., to resume work.

William Beckman, a neighbor, told police Mrs. Shiller had been left in his care by her husband, Edward Shiller, with the understanding that she was to catch an afternoon train to return to Norristown state hospital.

Beckman said that Mrs. Shiller, a patient at the hospital, had been permitted to return home for the Thanksgiving holidays. He lost her in a crowd, he said. She registered at 4:30 at the Y as "Mrs. M. Brown of Salem, N. Y.," and called a porter to help her open the window of her 18th floor room. At 6:35, her body hurtled to the sidewalk on 15th street, narrowly missing passersby. (Turn To Page Two)

PETAIN ON WAY TO MEET A HIGH REICH OFFICIAL

French Marshal Accompanied By Vice Premier Admiral Darlan Leaves Vichy for Unknown Destination in Occupied Zone

MAY SEE THE FUEHRER

BULLETIN
Madrid, Dec. 1.—(P)—Spanish diplomatic circles reported tonight that Adolf Hitler and Marshal Petain met this morning at Orleans, in occupied France. The reports added that Otto Abetz and Fernand De Brinon, the German and French Ambassadors to Paris; Joachim Von Ribbentrop and Admiral Jean Darlan, the German and French foreign ministers, also attended.

Berlin, Dec. 1.—(P)—DNE published without comment or verification today a report from Vichy that Chief of State Petain had gone to occupied France to meet high German officials.

Vichy, Unoccupied France, Dec. 1.—(P)—Marshal Petain, accompanied by Vice Premier Admiral Darlan left Vichy by train last night for a conference with high German officials in the occupied zone, it was announced today.

The announcement said they probably would return tonight or tomorrow.

(Private advices reaching New York said Petain was expected to see Adolf Hitler himself.)

As the official party, all dressed in civilian clothes, left Vichy aboard Petain's private train, the German consul, Krug Von Nidda, was summoned urgently to Paris for a conference which observers here believed was connected directly with the marshal's trip.

The destination of Petain and his aides remained a closely-guarded secret. The party, unaware of its own ultimate destination when it left Vichy, spent the night aboard the train at La Ferté-Hauterive station just south of the occupied zone awaiting (Turn To Page Two)

SWEEPING SLASH IN NYA IN STATE

Harrisburg, Dec. 1.—(P)—Sweeping economy reorganization of the Pennsylvania National Youth Administration program went into full force today to complete removal of more than 5,000 persons from employment projects and cut administrative salaries $200,000 a year.

A reduction in youth employment rolls becomes effective under orders of State Administrator Isaac Sutton to "cut the number on regular projects from 8,200 to 2,943, amounting to $10,000 monthly."

The personnel reductions, started last week, represent a 20 per cent payroll decrease. Student aid programs were slashed $38,000 monthly. (Turn To Page Two)

RAILROAD PARLEY IS IN RECESS

After Nearly 23 Hours Of Continuous Session President's Special Fact Finding Board Adjourns In Effort To Mediate Threatened Strike Of 350,000 Railway Operating Employees

CHAIRMAN IS NOT SO HOPEFUL AS AT FIRST

By the Associated Press
President Roosevelt's special fact finding board continued sessions today in efforts to mediate the threatened strike of 350,000 railway operating employees after a brief recess which followed a marathon session of nearly 23 hours brought no results.

The board members made no comment as they returned to their conference.

Wayne L. Morse, chairman of the board, said at the conclusion of the previous session that he was "not so hopeful as I was."

Earlier in the long night session, Morse had indicated he believed progress was being made toward a settlement. As he announced the recess however, he declared:

"There appears no chance of getting any report to the president until late this afternoon or tonight," Morse added. "If I think there is still hope of reaching a settlement in another night I am authorized to keep the parties in session."

Chairman Morse said a general pattern for a possible settlement had grown out of the conferences but that the fact finding board itself had not as yet offered recommendations for settling the dispute.

BUSINESS RUSH IS GREATEST IN OVER A DECADE

Philadelphia, Dec. 1.—(P)—Cash registers are jingling merrily these days as Mr. and Mrs. Pennsylvania publish their purses padded with defense boom earnings, promise department stores their greatest seasonal rush of retail business in more than a decade, the Federal Reserve Bank reported today.

Noting that October sales were the largest for the month since 1930 and still brisker in November, the bank said general industrial and trade activity in the third Federal Reserve District was at "unusually high levels" with wage earnings and prices continuing to climb.

Factory employment in Pennsylvania rose in October to a new peak of over 1,150,000 workers. Wage payments jumped 4 per cent to a record high of approximately $26,000,000 weekly.

Over Thirty Deaths By Violence are Recorded

By the Associated Press
Death by violence in Pennsylvania stood at more than 30 today for the four-day Thanksgiving holiday period. At least thirteen persons lost their lives over the weekend.

Automobile mishaps were responsible for a majority of the deaths.

They included James Blakey, 13, and Ruth Caldwell, 20, both of Turtle Creek, Allegheny county, killed when their machine collided with a Pennsylvania railroad freight train at a fog-bound Dravosburg crossing Saturday night.

Traffic In Wee Hours Of Morning Today Resembles That Of a Busy Saturday Afternoon; Eating Places Swamped

LARGE KILL PREDICTED

Despite predictions that fewer hunters would invade this section for the 1941 deer season, which opened at seven o'clock this morning, ninemurds swarmed into the northwestern Pennsylvania woods in a veritable army over the weekend. Starting early Sunday and continuing throughout last night there was a steady line of cars on highways through Warren as the ninemurds made their way into the big game country.

So great was the number of hunters on their way to the woods of this section that traffic in the wee hours of the morning today resembled that of a busy Saturday afternoon. All-night eating places experienced their biggest rush in a year and dawn saw supplies of food exhausted.

Long before daylight most of the red-clad hunters were in the woods, ready to seek out their deer. However, throughout the morning there were still some late comers moving into the game territory.

Predictions by the Pennsylvania Game Commission were that the total kill of deer this year might reach 25,000 bucks, many of them from the northwestern Pennsylvania area where the big game is most plentiful.

With a satisfactory supply of deer in the woods and the animals in good condition due to favorable feeding conditions, hunters are expected to take some very fine racks.

The season is confined to bucks with two or more points to an antler, shooting being limited to from 7 a. m. to 5 p. m., with no hunting on Sunday.

According to Seth Gordon, game commission director, the kill isn't expected to come close to the 39,000 bucks bagged in 1939—highest in the state's history. There were 185,000 deer shot last year when both bucks and does were legal game and 165,000 the year before.

Approximately 250,000 of the 640,000 licensed hunters—many of them women and bow and arrow enthusiasts—are expected to try their hand at the elusive prey during the 13-day season.

Eighteen persons met death during the 1941 hunt with approximately twice as many non-fatal mishaps, and Gordon says, "We ought to get away with less this year because sportsmen as a whole are more safely conscious due to our educational program and use of legal weapons to crack down on game law violators."

"Anybody who thinks anything of his life should wear red," urged the game director. "It's the best insurance policy they can buy."

Already 20 hunters have been killed during the small game season which closed Saturday, compared with 25 last season. The highest number of hunting fatalities for a deer season occurred in 1921 when 72 died during the combined deer and small game seasons.

Northwestern Pennsylvania game protectors reported the deer plentiful, but far back in the woods. Lack of snow and zero temperature as in past years added to protection of the deer. Tinder-dry woods prompted forestry authorities to ban open fires in some areas.

MISSING FLIERS ARE FOUND DEAD

Hyndman, Dec. 1.—(P)—State motor police said today that two men whose charred remains were found in the twisted wreckage of an airplane on a Bedford county mountain Saturday night have been definitely identified as Cleveland, O., fliers missing more than six months.

The victims were Daniel Stone, 36, and Early H. Waltz, 35. Identification was completed by two life-long friends, Samuel C. Johns and C. Carver Pope, both of Cleveland, who arrived here last night.

The fliers took off at Washington, D. C., last May 17 and were last reported from Lonaconing, Md. Coroner Charles Yoho expressed (Turn To Page Two)

Economy Chief Dies

SENATOR ADAMS SUCCUMBS TO A HEART ATTACK

Chairman of Public Lands Committee and also Head of Important Deficiency Appropriations Subcommittee

RESULT OF OVER WORK

Washington, Dec. 1.—(P)—Senator Alva B. Adams (D-Colo.), one of the senate's foremost advocates of government economy, died early today of heart trouble in his apartment hotel.

Adams was chairman of the senate public lands committee and also headed the important deficiency appropriations subcommittee. He was a member of the senate irrigation, banking and currency and rules committees, and chairman of a special senate committee on wool.

In private life a Pueblo, Colo., banker and attorney, he counseled economy in national spending until the last. As recently as November 20 he issued a statement asserting that congress was being asked to appropriate for war supplies "far in excess of the needs for American defense."

Although he supported the administration in many matters, Adams could not agree with the president's foreign policy and in early November voted against changing the neutrality bill to arm United States merchant ships.

The senator was 66 years old October 29. He suffered a heart attack the night of November 25 (Turn To Page Two)

GANGSTER CHIEF STILL HOPES TO BEAT THE CHAIR

New York, Dec. 1.—(P)—The fate of an east-side punk—Louis (Leopke) Buchalter, who flouted the law for three decades to child himself a half-million a year from small businesses—today was laid virtually in the lap of the president of the United States.

Already serving a 44-years-to-life sentence for various crimes, the 44-year-old one-time big shot racketeer was found guilty early yesterday of the murder of Joseph Rosen, Brooklyn candy store owner, but his ace in the hole was this:

Before he can be electrocuted in New York's Sing Sing prison death house, he hopes to "beat the chair" (Turn To Page Two)

Credit For Jump In Population Of A Million Is Given To the Babies

Washington, Dec. 1.—(P)—The babies—God bless 'em—got a nice pat on the back today from the Census Bureau for contributing the gain of more than a million in twelve months.

Blessed events in the year ending April 1 were approximately 153,000 more than the average year of the past decade, the bureau reported. Mainly because of this, the nation's estimated population climbed from 131,669,275 on April 1, 1940 to 132,818,005. There were 85,180 more immigrants than emigrants, and that helped, too.

The population increase during the year was 1,148,730, considerably more than the 889,000 average between 1930 and 1940. The excess of births over deaths in the 12 months period, the bureau said, was approximately 169,000 more than the ten year average. It gave two reasons: There were more women in the 20 to 44 year age group, who have most of the babies, and there was a 20 per cent increase in the number of marriages.

"Sufficient data are not yet available," the bureau report continued, "to determine whether there has been a rise in fertility from any other causes. It would be unsafe to say that the recent acceleration of population growth in the United States was more than a temporary reversal of the long-established decline in our rate of increase, because two of the major causes—more net immigration and a higher marriage rate—are probably not going to continue."

NO CHANGE IN CRISIS REPORTED

Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura Looks Grave As He and the Special Representative Saburo Kurusu Emerge From Office Of Secretary of State, Admitting "Wise Statesmanship Must Be Used"

TOKYO CABINET ACTION IS MORE OPTIMISTIC

Washington, Dec. 1.—(P)—Japan's envoys talked for more than an hour with Secretary of State Hull today but brought no reply from their government to the document handed them last week restating and clarifying the American position in the Far Eastern crisis.

After the conference Secretary Hull hurried across the street to the White House to report to President Roosevelt who had cut short a vacation at Warm Springs, Georgia, because of the crisis.

The president and Hull conferred by themselves in Mr. Roosevelt's oval study and later the president called Harry L. Hopkins, lend lease supervisor, for lunch. The president had no other engagements for the day.

It was learned that today's conversation concerned only subordinate phases of the situation and that no further discussion has been arranged so far.

Ambassador Kichisaburo Nomura looked grave when he and the special envoy, Saburo Kurusu, emerged from Hull's office. When a reporter asked him whether there was a wide gap between the American and Japanese positions, he replied: "I believe there must be wise statesmanship to save the situation."

Kurusu, when asked whether he and Nomura planned to see Hull again, said: "Yes, we are instructed to that effect by our government."

Kurusu said in response to questions that he and Nomura had merely gone over again various angles of their previous talks with Hull.

Later, state department officials said that the Japanese reply to the document Hull handed them (Turn To Page Nine)

Okmulgee Shaken By Refinery Explosion

Okmulgee, Okla., Dec. 1.—(P)—Hundreds of residents near the blazing Phillips Petroleum Co. refinery were asked to evacuate their homes today after an explosion at the plant killed one man and burned 15 others.

Firemen and plant officials feared a giant gasoline tank might explode and hurl steel and fire over a wide area.

Rescue workers feared that several workmen may have been trapped in the flames.

The explosion and fire apparently centered in the accumulators and tanks of the gasoline department. The refinery normally employs 350 to 400 workers.

The blast shook the downtown district a mile away. Flames shot a hundred or more feet into the air as fire roared up after the blast.

Forum Here Friday On Important Regulations On Consumer Credits

THE PHONE BOOTH MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

Chapter 11
Rumping Rankin

"Now look, Mayo, who has been killed," Rankin demanded. "Elissa Hingham?"

"What makes you think she might've been?" Elissa countered with another question.

"You've heard of people who were born to be killed, haven't you?" Rankin said. "Well, Elissa is one of those. She's been asking to be killed all her life, and I shouldn't be at all surprised if she and her lifeless body crumpled in a little heap somewhere, under the present circumstances. Was it Elissa?"

"What do you mean by the present circumstances?" Asey wanted to know.

Rankin took a few steps down the driveway.

"Right around here is where I lost that lighter," he said. "I had my raincoat slung over my shoulder, and it popped out of the pocket—aha! I thought I'd find it."

He bent over and picked something up from the side of the driveway.

"What about the present circumstances?" Asey persisted.

"See?" Rankin displayed a small chrome pipe, lighter, and a match.

"I mean her husband, Mayo. And if you don't know about him, then I don't think it was Elissa after all. And if there's really been trouble here, I'm not going to prejudice you against her by bandying her name about. But she hasn't been killed. Her domestic problems don't matter. I wish you'd tell me—I say, it wasn't Lady Boop, was it?"

"Who?"

Rankin laughed.

"That's my own private name for Mrs. Clutterbuck. Violet Clutterbuck. You know her, don't you? You don't? Really? Mayo, I'm beginning to think that you don't get around much in Quisset's upper crust."

"If don't," Asey told him. "For the last six months, I've been so busy training Bill Porter around that I haven't even been on the Cape at all very much. I know some folks here, of course, but Quisset's never been a town I seem to get to, somehow, and if I did, I just get through with it out of town. If it's got an upper crust or a meringue. Tell me about Lady Boop—an' look, let's stroll down the drive a bit so we ain't quite so visible from the Inn."

"About the only place you're visible from now," Rankin said, "is my bathroom window. Why don't you want to be seen?"

"I'm trying out the enough-ropes theory," Asey said. "It ain't about all I can do to Lieutenant Hanson. I don't like the way he shows up. That about Lady Boop?"

Rankin smoothed his neat Vandike and looked at Asey reflectively.

"Do you think it's entirely fair," he asked, "to pump me this way, without telling me who's been killed? I can only give you my opinions, which are largely biased, and might not coincide at all with someone else's opinions. For all I know, I may be either maligning the dead or slipping a noose around someone's throat! You're out of sight here by the way, but you can still get a pretty good view of the place, if that's what you're after."

"It is," Asey puffed by a clump of pines and looked back at the Inn. "I'm also after a kind of panoramic view of the people here. I want to get 'em sorted out in my mind. As like I told you, I don't even know who the body is that we haven't got. But I'm considerably interested in Lady Boop."

Lady Boop

"Well, she's a large, plump lady," Rankin said, "whose husband died ten years ago and left her a fortune, and since then her mother and two sisters have all died and left her their fortunes. Also a grandnephew and a great-aunt. And last month, I believe it was another great-aunt who contributed. As Freddy Doane quipped, everyone who goes to their reward seems to kick back a good share to Lady Boop."

"Rich as that, is she?"

"She pays more taxes annually," Rankin said with a trace of bitterness, "than you and I will ever earn in all our lives. I can easily picture her dying of apoplexy, but I suppose people with all that money are a constant invitation and challenge to murderers. Was it Lady Boop? Because if it wasn't, by the process of elimination, that leaves only Horace and—"

"Hey!" Asey said suddenly.

"What's the matter?"

Asey drew Rankin back into the shadow of the pines and pointed up toward the roof of the Inn.

"Look up there. Do you see somebody on the catwalk by the small chimney?"

Rankin put on a pair of glasses. "Yes! Yes! I do! It's a woman! For God's sakes, it's Elissa! What's she up to?"

"Not so loud!" Asey cautioned. "She's crazy! She can't get down from there! What's she doing?"

"Shush!" Asey said. "She'll hear!"

"She's dragging something—Mayo," Rankin said in horror, "it's a body!"

"Can't be!" Asey seemed to be trying to convince himself rather than Rankin. "Can't be!"

"Certainly is a body!" Rankin insisted.

Asey peered up at the roof. When the wind blew them just the right way, the leaves of the maple trees in front of the Inn swayed and let the street light shine on the figure on the catwalk. It was Mrs. Hingham, all right, although she'd changed her billowing, satin house coat for something more practical. A trench coat or a polo coat, it looked like. And she certainly was dragging something.

"But she didn't die a body, Asey told himself. At least, she couldn't be the body he had seen. That had been downstairs, and its removal up a flight of stairs was a physical feat beyond the ability of Mrs. Hingham. It couldn't be the body, and yet Asey couldn't imagine what Mrs. Hingham was alternately tugging and dragging at if it wasn't a body.

"Rankin," he said suddenly, "would there be an elevator in the Inn?"

"No, 'em, let's see."

"Two?" Asey asked in surprise. One was unusual enough in a Cape Inn.

"One in the dining room, and one in the alcove off the living room. For the aged and gouty. There's no elevator in the building, but elevators, Mayo, let's go and look into this!"

Hanson Arrives

Asey took his arm and pulled him back.

"For the love of God, what for?"

"If we surprise her now," Asey said. "I have a horrid feeling that by the time we get to the Inn we'll find Mrs. Hingham back in her room, sufferin' terrible with 'em."

"So she's been pulling her migraine act again, has she?" Rankin demanded. "Hm! But we can see her! She can't deny being there when the two of us saw her!"

"Maybe she can't," Asey said, "but I bet you she will. Wait, Mr. Rankin. Wait an' see what she's aimin' to do. After all this to-do, I want to see what her underlin' plan was."

Rankin said in exasperated tones that he didn't see that waiting and watching and generally prolonging the agony would get Asey or anybody else anywhere at all.

"Get her," he added, "get the body and get to the roof of the building."

"I'll admit it's sort of the first impulse you get," Asey said. "But consider. If she finds a body in her room, say, she thinks it's the best thing to put the body elsewhere. She'll probably drag it along that adjoining sun deck an' leave it there. Could happen, you know. But, on the other hand, if it's a body she's responsible for, as you might say, she's probably got some idea of removing it to as far distant a place as she can manage. The more effort she makes to take it away, an' the further she takes it, the redder her hands are, an' the harder it's goin' to be for her to deny anything! Then you really got her."

"I think that's nonsense," Rankin said flatly.

"Maybe so, but you," Asey said, "ain't seen what I seen tonight in the line of bodies bein' one place one minute an' elsewhere the next, an' nobody seemin' to know anything about it, or bein' involved with it. Now that I got someone with a body, I want to run 'em to the ground with it. I think—what in time!"

"She's running back to that cave door!" Rankin said. "Something's frightened her!"

Asey pointed to the man marching down the middle of the driveway.

"It's Hanson! Golly, he would turn up now!" he said. "If he goes bargin' into the Inn, he'll spoil everything. An' if Mrs. Hingham spots us rushin' up an' hailin' him, that won't work out, neither. Gimme your little lighter, quick, will you?"

Rankin looked puzzled, but he dropped the lighter in Asey's outstretched hand, and Asey promptly raised his arm and pitched the lighter straight at Hanson.

It hit him on the shoulder, and Hanson stopped and looked around him curiously.

"Keep on walkin', Hanson," Asey said as he neared them. "Don't stop. Keep walkin' about six feet more, an' then turn around an' march out the way you come. Go down the road as far as that locust grove, then circle around back here to us so you won't be seen from the Inn. We'll wait here. I'll explain later."

Hanson obeyed without question.

"Do you mind my saying," Rankin sounded amused, "that this seems really rather involved?"

"Nope," Asey told him, "I don't mind a speck. It is involved. But I hope it's going to have a simple endin', which you wouldn't get if you barged inside the Inn right now an' started blatin' around, yellin' for explanation. Think of all the Doanes an' Mr. Hingham, all denyin' an' affirmin' talkin' at once."

DEFENSE CLASS OPENS TONIGHT AT SHEFFIELD

Sheffield, Dec. 1.—The opening session of a national defense school, which will be conducted here this fall and winter, will be held in the Lincoln school annex at 8 o'clock tonight, when a class in welding will meet with their instructor, H. O. Shirey, and L. O. Eisenhauer, local high school principal, who is in charge of the defense school project here. Christmas Parade Here Declared One Of Most Successful Ever Held

Parade Briefs

One of the most successful events of its kind ever to be held in Warren was staged on Saturday when thousands of residents of this vicinity gathered to witness the Christmas parade held under the auspices of the Citizens' Committee and to participate in the celebration marking the opening of the holiday season.

Headed by the colorful Rocky Grove Firemen's Band and with a dozen other musical organizations participating, the long procession moved over the streets of the business section as youngsters and adults alike looked on. The entire line of march was lined with spectators who thoroughly enjoyed the spectacle.

Perhaps the most attention of the entire parade was attracted by Santa Claus himself, who led the procession in an open car. Santa stood throughout the parade, waving and speaking to youngsters along the way who were thrilled at seeing the jolly fellow.

The first division featured the Rocky Grove Band, members of the Citizens' Committee, attired in military caps and hats, and the marching unit of the Rodgway Fire Department. In the second division, headed by the Warren V. F. W. Band, were the Kane Fire Department apparatus and marching delegation and the fine float of the Warren County Chapter, Bundles for Britain.

The children's division was headed by the Warren High School Band and included the American Legion Junior Auxiliary, Sons of the Legion, Girl and Boy Scouts and a group of decorated children. The float, amply decorated with the division.

The fourth division, led by the Jamestown American Legion Drum Corps, included the Fireworks Fire Department and Auxiliary marching units and the Red Cross float. The fifth, headed by the Russell High School Band, included equipment of the Russell Sugar Grove and Youngsville fire departments and the float of the First Lutheran church, depicting the nativity.

In the sixth division, which was led by the Sheffield High School Band, was the Legion Club car featuring Christmas Seals being sold by the Warren County Tuberculosis Society, the local police car and three trucks of the Warren Fire Department. The final division was led by the Lincoln Schoolboy Patrol drum corps, of Sheffield, decorated trucks of Dickey's Dairy and the Bartsch Furniture Company, and the Salvation Army Band.

Prior to the parade, costumes of the children were judged at the point of formation in Water street. In the girls' group, first prize went to Coral Peterson, 12 Oak street, with Laura Gano, 112 Pennsylvania avenue, second. In the boys' group, Dick Schuler, 10 Roy street and Tommy Richards, 12 Brook street, took first place, while Leshe James Gano, 112 Pennsylvania avenue, west, was second.

The entire affair was declared a huge success by all those who were on hand.

The Chamber of Commerce this morning urged all merchants who have not done so to pay their pledges for the parade by tomorrow so that bills which are outstanding may be taken care of as soon as possible.

Third Flight Class Started Here Under C. P. T. Program of C.A.A.

Sixteen young men of this section starting this week on their flight training at the Warren Airport in the Civilian Pilot Training class of the Civilian Aeronautics Administration, sponsored by the Warren Chamber of Commerce.

First instruction in the class, which completed ground school training about two weeks ago, was given Sunday and the instructors at the local airport expect to be busy for the next several weeks training the group for pilots' licenses.

Orders to start the flight class were received Saturday in a telegram from the district C. A. A. headquarters.

PLANE DAMAGED
A plane owned by the King Air Service of the Warren Airport had its landing gear slightly damaged about 10 a. m. Sunday when Glenn Marlett, a student, made a forced landing in a hay field near the game preserve, south of Clarendon. The student was uninjured. According to V. S. King, manager of the airport, Marlett did a good job of putting the ship into such a small space. The landing gear was repaired immediately and the plane flown back to the airport. Betty Jane King, a member of the C. P. T. program here, it was stated.

Railroad Parley In Recess

(From Page One) "We are still hoping the parties will devise the terms themselves," he declared. It was understood that the five railroad operating brotherhoods had reached a tentative agreement on terms for settlement of the issues, but that the representatives of the 14 non-operating brotherhoods had failed to subscribe to this agreement. The fact-finding board has been ordered to report to the president today on the results of its efforts to settle the dispute and avert the strike.

Wayne Morse, chairman of the board, urged the conferees, in the national interest, to work out a settlement "without a paralyzing, and in the chairman's opinion, an unjustifiable railroad strike." The conferees divided into four groups—the operating brotherhoods, the non-operating brotherhoods, management representatives and the board itself. Morse was kept busy all day and all night shuttling back and forth between the various high suites, carrying suggestions and proposals, or seeking to smooth out difficulties. Elsewhere the labor front presented this picture. CIO workers at Bell Aircraft Corporation's plants in Buffalo, N. Y., voted yesterday to strike at 8 a. m. Wednesday in support of

The Chamber of Commerce, co-operating with Retail Merchants Boards, Credit Men's Bureaus, Chambers of Commerce in nearby cities, and the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, is sponsoring a luncheon meeting to be held at the Y. W. C. A., Warren, at 12:15 p. m., on December 5, for the purpose of conducting an open forum on Regulation W, which deals with the granting of consumer credit. By the terms of the regulation, all grantors of installment sale credits or all lenders of cash advances must be required to register and be licensed by the Federal Reserve Bank of the district in which the principal office of the business is located, by January 1, 1942.

This registration requirement includes banks, building and loan companies, finance companies, personal loan companies, certain building supply and heating and ventilating dealers, automobile dealers, and in some cases even

Chapter 11

Rumpling Rankin

"Now look, Mayo, who has been killed, Rankin demanded. 'Elissa Hingham?'"

"What makes you think she might've been?" Asey countered with another question. "You've heard of people who were born to be killed, haven't you?" Rankin said. "Well, Elissa Hingham was born to be killed all her life, and I shouldn't be at all surprised to find her lifeless body crumpled in a little heap somewhere, under the present circumstances. Was it Elissa?"

"What do you mean by the present circumstances?" Asey wanted to know.

Rankin took a few steps down the driveway. "Right around here is where I lost that lighter," he said. "I had my raincoat slung over my shoulder, and it popped out of the pocket—aha! I thought I'd find it."

He bent over and picked something up from the side of the driveway.

"That about the present circumstances?" Asey persisted.

"See?" Rankin displayed a small chromium pocket lighter. "I mean her husband, Mayo. And if you don't know about him, then I don't think it was Elissa after all. And if there's really trouble here, I'm not going to let you prejudice her private life about it. If she hasn't been killed, her domestic problems don't matter. I wish you'd tell me—I say, it wasn't Lady Boop, was it?"

Rankin laughed. "That's my own private name for Mrs. Clutterfield. Violet Clutterfield. You know her, don't you? You don't? Really? Mayo, I'm beginning to think that you don't get around much in Quis-set's upper crust."

"I don't," Asey told him. "For the last six months, I've been so busy trawling Bill Porter around that I haven't even been on the Cape at all very much. I know some folks here, of course, but Quis-set's new place down town seem to get to, somehow, an' if I do, I just pass through it without notice if it's got an upper crust or a meringue. Tell me about Lady Boop—an' look, let's stroll down the driveway and I'll show you the place where I saw her."

"About the only place you're visible from now," Rankin said, "is my bathroom window. Why don't you want to be seen?"

"In trying out the rough-rope theory," Asey said. "I bet about all I can do till Lieutenant Hanson of the state cops shows up. What about Lady Boop?"

Rankin smoothed his neat Vandyke and looked at Asey reflectively.

"If you think it's entirely fair," he asked, "to pump me this way, without telling me who's been killed? I can only give you my opinions, which are largely biased, and might not coincide at all with someone else's opinions. For all I know, I may be overlooking the dead and slipping a noose around someone's throat. You're out of sight here, by the way, but you can still get a pretty good view of the place, if that's what you're after."

"It is," Asey paused by a clump of pines and looked back at him. "I'm also after a kind of panoramic view of the people here. I want to get 'em sorted out in my mind. An' like I told you, I don't even know who the body is that we haven't got. But I'm considerably interested in Lady Boop."

Lady Boop

"Well," she's a large, plump lady," Rankin said, "whose husband died ten years ago and left her a fortune, and since then her mother and two sisters have all died and left her their fortunes. Also a grandmother and a great-aunt. And last month, I believe it was another great-aunt who contributed. As Freddy Doane quipped, everyone who goes to their reward seems to kick back a good share to Lady Boop."

"Rich as that, is she?" "She pays more taxes annually," Rankin said with a trace of bitterness, "than you and I will ever earn in all our lives. I can easily picture her dying of apoplexy, but I suppose people with all that money are a constant invitation and challenge to murderers. Was it Lady Boop? Because if it wasn't, by the process of elimination, that leaves only Horace and—"

"Hey!" Asey said suddenly.

"What's the matter?"

Asey drew Rankin back into the shadow of the pines and pointed up toward the roof of the Inn.

"Look up there. D'you see somebody on the catwalk by the small chimney?"

Rankin put on a pair of glasses. "Yes! Yes, I do! It's a woman! For God's sakes, it's Elissa! What's she up to?"

"Not so loud!" Asey cautioned. "She's crazy! She can't get down from there! What's she doing?"

"Shush!" Asey said. "She'll hear!"

"She's dragging something—Mayo," Rankin said in horror, "it's a body!"

Individuals Registration is required irrespective of the fact that the lender's or vendor's policies and practices may conform to the requirements of the regulation.

The meeting will be addressed by John A. Schmidt, of the Pittsburgh Branch, Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland, who is administering the regulation in the Pittsburgh Branch territory of the Fourth Federal Reserve District. Mr. Schmidt will review the regulation itself, with particular reference to its objectives and to the requirements of registration. Following this presentation there will be an open question and answer period.

The meeting is open to all persons acted by the regulation in this trade area, and both the Warren Chamber of Commerce and the Federal Reserve Bank urge that all persons subject to the regulation make every effort to be present.

The Functions of the Press

This is one of a series of editorials specially designed to acquaint Times-Mirror readers with the various functions of the Press.

THE PRESS AND LOCAL HISTORY

Few people, as they read their town newspaper, realize that they are reading perhaps the only contemporary history of their community it is possible to read. It is doubtful too if they realize that as each issue gets old, the more valuable it becomes, and that the old files of a newspaper are from a historical standpoint, of incalculable worth.

The newspaper files are the most authentic history of the community available. They tell the story of the community's life as it happens. Past history is important to those who live in the present. Those of us who live in modern surroundings are sometimes apt to forget the sacrifices of those who made the community what it is today. Men have worked, and schemed and planned and today we have every modern convenience, churches, schools, libraries, theatres, electric lights, sewers, sidewalks, paved streets and a hundred and one other conveniences our forefathers never dreamed of. These things did not come about by chance or by natural evolution. They came about because men toiled ceaselessly to leave behind them a better world than that into which they came. Their devotion, their struggles, their ideals, their initiative and determination should be an inspiration to succeeding generations. And the record of their achievements appears in the files of the local newspapers, and that is why they are such valuable records of the triumphs of the pioneers.

Few people who contribute to the news columns of the newspaper are aware that they are contemporary historians. They are chronicling the events of community life for posterity, and generations hence will read the story they have told, and from the struggles of this day they will gain inspiration for the struggles of their day. The newspaper preserves the story of our ideals, our problems and our lives, and those who contribute to the news columns of their local newspaper are therefore doing a valuable service for "those who follow in their wake."

For this reason it is essential that contributors write so that the reader twenty-five or fifty years hence may understand the import of the story. For instance, some writers are apt to consider a story as of interest only to their particular organization, rather than to the community as a whole. Occasionally one reads an item about a young people's meeting in which John does this, and Mary does that. To the average reader this doesn't convey anything even at the time, and it would convey still less a quarter of a century after it is written. If the same organization wanted to check back for historical purposes many years after John and Mary would not convey to them who were the active members of their group in bygone days.

The newspaper is truly the archives of the community, and as such is of increasing value to the community as its files grow old. The readers are therefore personally a part of the newspaper, because their contributions to its columns are helping to record the history of the age in which they live.

COMMENDABLE CELEBRATION

Well, most every one agrees that it was a great parade for December, and the thousands who lined the streets won't forget it in a long time.

About the only serious criticism was that it was almost a half hour late, but when the fact became known that the delay was unavoidable so far as the committee was concerned everyone seemed satisfied. As a matter of fact the start was held up because many of the members of the Rocky Grove band were late in arriving due to the fact that they could not get around a truck accident at Irvine.

All concerned are to be congratulated, including the committee, the merchants and business men who subscribed to the fund to finance the celebration, the Chamber of Commerce, police and fire departments along with other borough officials who cooperated 100 per cent, and especially Santa Claus, who seemed to be having more fun than any one else.

It was a great afternoon for Warren, made doubly so because of the unusually pleasant weather.

Wonder where all those red-capped motorists who drove through town, eastbound, yesterday and last night, found parking space for their cars along the roads in the big game woods of the county.

Reports from Both Moscow and Berlin seem to indicate that the Russian bear doesn't intend to be skinned alive without putting up a real fight.

The shopping district looks very attractive in its Christmas dress, particularly at night.

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN

By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK—There are half a million people in New York who confine their reading strictly to the amusement pages of the newspapers. Consequently, a form of reporting has grown up to meet this situation that, with the exception of Hollywood and a few other metropolitan centers, would seem silly anywhere else.

It is a play on names, the reporters merely listing the names, without comment, of people seen at various cafes and meeting places. Every name means a paper bought. The following are excerpts from amusement sections of today's Manhattan press:

"CALLERS at the Stork Club: Carol Bruce, Jo Ann Sayers, Charles Butterworth, Amon Carter, Bradshaw Crandall, Nancy Carroll, Betty Gordon, Gertrude Niessen, Frank Buck, Roscoe Turner, Sidney Kingsley, Danny Kaye, Peier Arno, Liz Whitney, Mrs. Gloria Vanderbilt, Virginia Fields, Roland Young, James Montgomery Flagg, Paul Lukas, J. Edgar Hoover, Alexia Thompson.

"At Fefe's Monte Carlo: Lana Turner, Rosalind Russell, Joan Bennett, Walter Pidgeon, Una Merkel, Margot Grahame, Linda Darnell, Henry Fonda, Bruce Cabot, George Jessel, Ronald Colman.

"At El Morocco: Errol Flynn, Bruce Cabot, George Jessel, Vincent Youmans, Paul Flato, James Cromwell, John Jacob Astor, Sherman Fairchild, Woolworth Donahue, Jack Topping, Arthur Treacher.

"At the Olney Inn: Boris Karloff, Russell Crouse, Howard Lindsay.

"At Armando's Rosentary Lane, Gil Stratton, Jack Dempsey, Hannah Williams, Hank Greenberg.

"At last night's premiere: Ronald Colman, Joan Bennett, Liz Whitney, Taylor Holmes, Russell Crouse, Paul Hartman, Grace Hartman, Jack Topping, Jake Webb, Errol Flynn, George S. Kaufman, Sidney Kingsley, Diana Barrymore, Sally Benson, Lillian Hellman, Theresa Helburn, Charles Armstrong, Ed Wynn, Mady Christians, Guthrie McClintic.

HUNDREDS of names go into the news every single day, and since names make news—in New York at least—it pays, I know, an actor who made a name for himself in Hollywood, and came to New York for a long-run hit on Broadway. Every day he buys all the papers, carefully reads every single line in the amusement sections, then tosses the papers away.

He knows what blond crooner was at Leon & Eddie's last night, but he couldn't tell you what Michigan did to Columbia or the situation at the captive mines. Occasionally he sees his own name there.

These mentions are carefully torn out, pencilled, and pasted into a book of clippings. Once he was listed as having been seen at three different places the same night, that was Victory with a capital V.

STORIES IN STAMPS

Post-War Treaties May Change Danzig Status

IT is slightly more than two years ago that Adolf Hitler issued a proclamation which incorporated the former Free City of Danzig into the Third Reich to mark the city's tenth change of sovereignty in 800 years.

The stamp above, issued in 1935, pictures a gate to the city that was frequently overrun by marauding armies which coveted the fine harbor and fertile surrounding fields. The surtax is for winter charity.

A thousand years ago the city was a peaceful Polish fishing village, Gdansk, at the mouth of the Vistula river. Forerunners of the city in 1150; it was returned to Polish domination in 1282.

Teutonic knights seized the city in 1308, but their rule lasted only until 1466 when the territory was returned to Poland. In 1772, when Poland was partitioned for the first time, Germany absorbed the hinterland but left the city more or less free. But in the second Polish partition in 1793, Germany absorbed the city as well.

Napoleon restored Danzig to free city status for the seventh change. In 1814 it was returned to Germany and remained a part of the German empire until World War treaties made it Poland's outlet to the sea.

ABOUT THE MOON

The moon, about one-fourth the size of the earth, is not large enough to attract an atmosphere. There is no air or water surrounding it, and since it has no weather, no change ever takes place on its surface.

A WASHINGTON DAYBOOK

By JACK STINETT
WASHINGTON—It isn't discussed publicly but I can assure you that the government is out now to build some buildings so they WON'T last.
These are the temporary buildings, designed to take care of the vast overflow of government workers now here to see that the national defense program moves constantly forward.
This idea of constructing temporary buildings so they will be temporary and nothing more is not the whim of any contractor out to make a pot of dough off the government. It comes right down from Mr. Roosevelt himself. As a matter of fact, the plan of building "temporary" office buildings so they will fall down about the time the emergency is over isn't something that the President has just thought up for the present emergency, either. He has had that idea for nearly a quarter of a century.

THE two most famous "temporary" buildings in Washington are the Navy and Munitions buildings (housing a generous portion of the War department). Ugly, three-story, gray, twin structures, they stretch for blocks along Constitution avenue and are an eye-sore to the Mall. The Mall could be the most beautifully landscaped gridiron of roadways in the world. At its east end is Capitol Hill. At its west, a couple of miles away are the Washington monument and the Lincoln memorial and between them the long Reflecting Pool. A network of roads leads from one end of the Mall to the other and flanking these streets are the vast departmental and other governmental buildings.

Some are old, some are ugly, some are new and beautiful, but all are impractical—all save those squat little "temporary" buildings that were flung up during World War I and have remained ever since. They are as conspicuous as an out-of-step West Pointer in a newsreel review.

WHEN they were being planned 24 years ago, young Assistant Secretary of the Navy Franklin

D. Roosevelt had the vision to see this. He wanted the buildings built so they would fall down in seven or eight years at most and when nobody applauded his foresight, he suggested that they be built on the south lawn of the White House. That, he felt, would assure their temporariness. President Wilson objected, not on the wisdom of making them temporary, but because he felt that no President could work with so much noise going on just outside his window.
There hasn't been the least hint that President Roosevelt still feels the same about cluttering up the south lawn, but there has been more than a hint that he feels the same about "temporary" eyesores marring the national capital's beauty in the years when peace has come again.

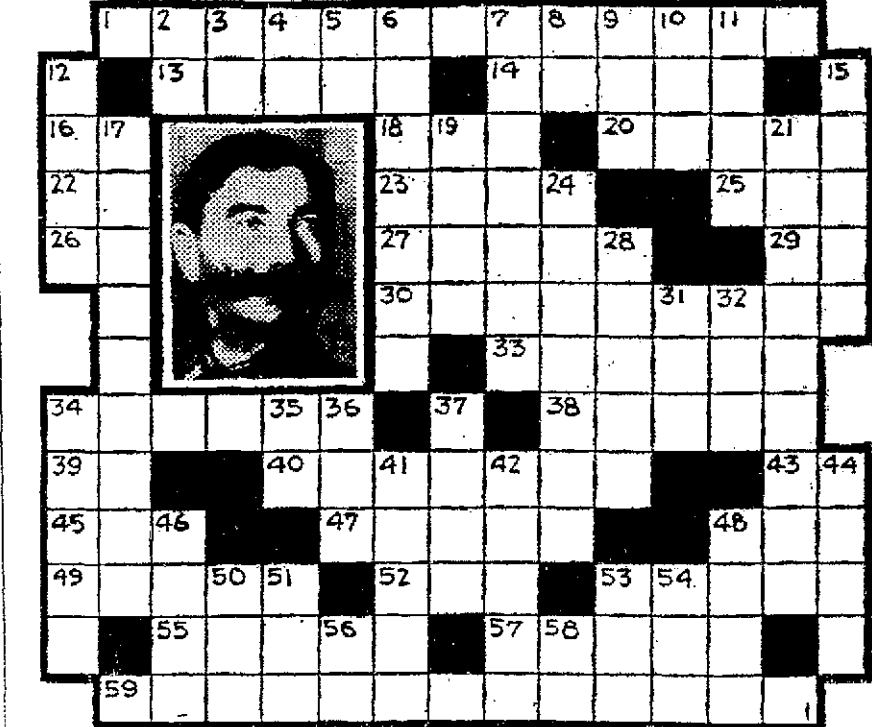

That has the architects and construction engineers fretting over their plans and it is likely some of the new temporary structures authorized by Congress will be built without stone or steel—little more than elongated shanties that will fall to the storms or to termites before a decade is two-thirds done.

UNDER construction now are a series of low "temporary" buildings in the morning shadows of the Capitol, but a block south of the Mall proper. Some of these are to house offices of the Navy. (The Army has its brand new and pretty nice office building and a good many other permanent structures around Washington, but the Navy seems always to be drawing "temporary" quarters.) These buildings have some concrete, but I wouldn't call them permanent. I don't think the President would either—or he never would have okayed the plans.

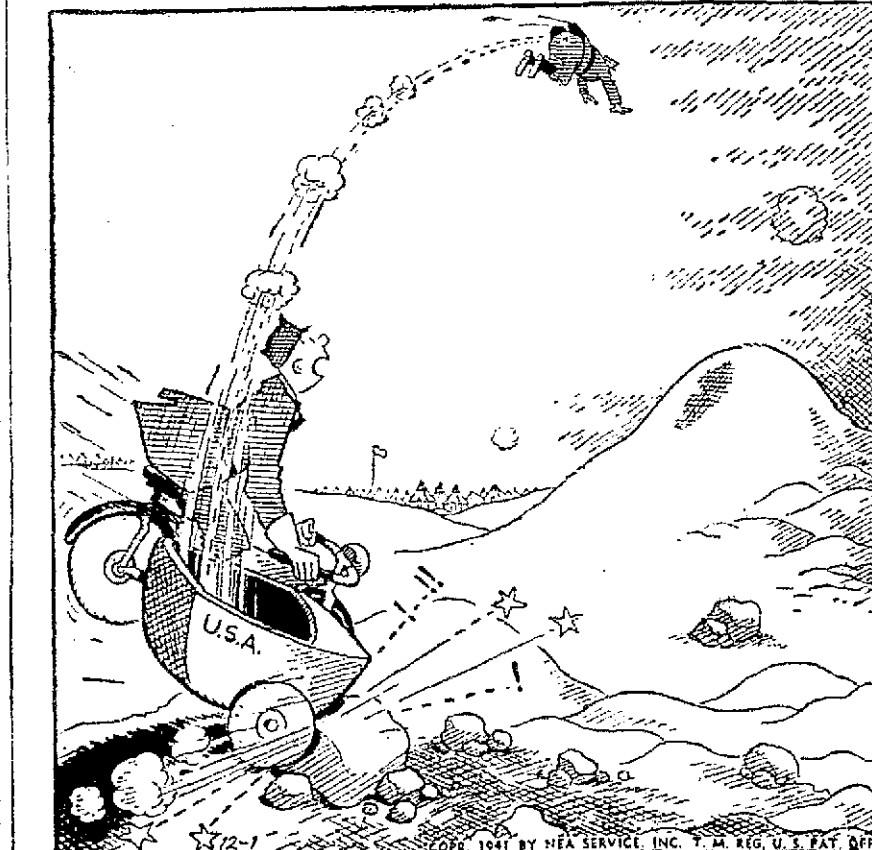

An interesting sidelight on this "temporary buildings" business is just how long does the President think the buildings will be necessary. You'll never find that out for certain, but the closest I can get is something more than five and something less than ten years.

PUC APPROVAL REQUIRED FOR MAKING CHANGE

Harrisburg, Dec. 1—The Utility Commission has embodied its present requirements for the protection of grade crossings over steam and electric railways in Pennsylvania in a formal order.

The order replaces the general instructions which were issued by letter some six or more years ago as an informal regulation. Copies of the order have been sent to all the steam and electric railways in Pennsylvania.

Unless exceptions to the order are filed with the Commission within 15 days after it has been received by the railways, the order will become final.

The order provides that no steam or electric railway company operating in Pennsylvania, shall remove, without Commission approval, the present protection afforded at grade crossings by signals, gates, warning men or any other form of protection.

No steam or electric company shall reduce the number of hours that manual protection is maintained at any grade crossing, nor alter or substitute any form of protection for a form already maintained at a crossing, without approval of the Commission.

In order to secure uniformity of aspect, location and operation of automatic crossing protection proposed to be installed at crossings formerly unprotected or protected by fixed signs only, the Commission ordered that plans of such proposed installations shall be approved by it prior to installation.

The Commission ruled that nothing in the instructions shall be construed as preventing the placing of watchmen, gates or both at any public crossing, or increasing the number of hours, any crossing is protected.

FIRE DEPARTMENT OUT

The fire department was called out twice within 30 hours Wednesday and Thursday, the first time to check a chimney fire and the second to put out a fire in a car. The chimney fire occurred about 8:30 Wednesday evening at the Frank Jashurek residence, Deerlick street, and caused no damage. Shortly before midnight Thursday the department was summoned to extinguish a fire which resulted when a gas line feeding the carburetor broke in a small 1929 car owned by Miss Catherine Bray, of Kane. The mishap occurred on the Roosevelt highway, near the Ralston residence, about a mile east of here. Damage to the car was negligible and neither Miss Bray nor her companion, Kenneth Plunkett, this place, was injured.

STUDY RELATION OF FORESTS TO WATER SUPPLY

Harrisburg, Dec. 1—The Public drought which occurred throughout Pennsylvania during the month of September, has raised the question as to the relation of our vast supply to an adequate forest cover, according to Chas. E. Baer, Deputy Secretary, Department of Forests and Waters.

Observations conducted by the Department show that the removal of timber from local watersheds resulted in fewer springs and the flow of those remaining on such areas was not steady nor constant.

During the summer growth season the demand of the forest trees upon water stored in the ground is very great and by autumn the underground water is low. As a result the forest soil then absorbs large quantities of water during the rest period of the trees when there is an excess of water on the ground from heavy rains or melting of snow. Forest soils form a reservoir, the absorbing power of which, is sometimes so great that it can hold, for a limited time, a rainfall of five inches.

Another far reaching influence of the forest upon the stream flow lies in its ability to protect the soil from washing. This particularly is important upon steep mountain slopes and at stream headwaters. The forest is the most effective agent for protecting the soil from erosion, as the resistance of the soil to erosion is increased by the roots of the trees holding the soil in place, and because the runoff is checked and its distribution over the surface is equalized.

Forest cover intercepts the rain and rays of the sun, checks the movement of the air and reduces radiation at night. The accumulation of the ground cover forms a forest floor which has much to do with the movement of water on the ground and within it.

The relation between forests and water has been recognized in Pennsylvania since the first purchase of State Forest land in 1897. More than forty years ago the State began to supply seedling trees for planting on forest land for watershed protection, as well as timber production. During this period 137 water companies have planted approximately 16,000,000 trees on their watersheds, which evidences that water companies are vitally interested in reforestation.

The relation between forests and water has been recognized in Pennsylvania since the first purchase of State Forest land in 1897. More than forty years ago the State began to supply seedling trees for planting on forest land for watershed protection, as well as timber production. During this period 137 water companies have planted approximately 16,000,000 trees on their watersheds, which evidences that water companies are vitally interested in reforestation.

WARNING

Our attention has been called to an advertisement in a recent issue of the TIMES-MIRROR, by a so-called "cut-rate" chain-store, which both misleads and misrepresents.

This "ad" listed certain products as being Genuine DUPONT Antifreeze and depicted "cuts" of various anti-freeze compounds. The reader's natural inference would be that ALL the products listed are by DUPONT whereas ZEREX and ZERONE were the only DUPONT products shown.

This was plainly a misrepresentation.

Also it was implied that DUPONT products might be purchased at this establishment at lower prices than elsewhere. This is misleading, as DUPONT products are sold at ONE PRICE country-wide.

It is therefore opportune to warn motorists, at this time particularly, regarding their purchases of anti-freeze. There is a real shortage this year and you may expect all sorts of trick substitutions. There is more opportunity for that sort of thing with anti-freeze than with any other automotive product.

While we do not imply that the only good anti-freeze is made by DUPONT we do strongly urge that you have your radiator serviced by your neighborhood dealer or mechanic who handles only reputable products and who has the essential equipment and training for the job. The cooling system CAN cause you more downright, mean trouble than any other part of your car.

To be doubly safe insist on ZEREX, the IMPROVED permanent type, or ZERONE, the standard of anti-freeze value. And, to steal a phrase from the fur trade, IF YOU DON'T KNOW ANTI-FREEZE, KNOW YOUR DEALER.

This is being published as a sincere effort to save trouble for heeding motorists and in behalf of the many reputable dealers handling our DUPONT products in this area.

OFFER TIMING IS MOST IMPORTANT IN TITLE CONTESTS

BY WM. E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority
Timing is one of the most important factors in playing expert bridge. If your timing goes wrong, it's not that your game is run. Even the best players often fail to time plays properly. The opening lead brought out five, queen and six of spades, led the jack of clubs and then went up with the ace. The trump revealed the bad it. West discarded the deuce of diamonds. South led the jack of spades, which was allowed to win. Then a heart lead to the ten put st in. East led the ten of clubs to dummy's king. North cashed the spade for the discard of South's rd club. Then North led a diamond and the jack forced the ace. st laid down the queen of clubs, st discarded a diamond, and now larer could not avoid the loss a second trump trick. The trump break was unfortunate, and declarer played well he discovered it. But he w the hand on the first trick, should have dropped the jack spades under the queen. The y could cost him nothing, and ugain a quick entry to nmy. What a difference in the timing uld result! The return club is n by the ace, the ace of trumps, led, then the spade led to the, and the spade ace cashed for club discard. Now dummy rts the diamonds before the g of clubs is knocked out, and st never gets a chance to make re than one trump.

URNEY BRIDGE DRAWS CROWDS; ANYONE MAY WIN

BY WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority
There is more interest each year only in national contract ge championships, but a city, state and sectional championships. Bridge tournaments are open to everyone, and there is just as much thrill in winning one as there is in winning a golf or tennis championship.

Every player has the same chance, because bridge does not depend upon any special implements or fine equipment—just sound thinking. Avoid the simple mistakes shown in this series.

After taking the ace of hearts, West cashed the ace of spades. Then he led a small club. Dummy put up the king, led a small trump and the finesse of the queen won. But East still held the king-ten over the jack, and declarer had to go down one.

common error. His first trump lead should have been the jack.

A moment's reflection will show that this honor lead loses nothing that could be gained by the play of a low card, whether the king is blank or once guarded, or whether West holds all three trumps. But in case East holds all three trumps, the jack-lead is imperative to prepare a double-finesse and pick up the adverse holding without loss.

The name of Mrs. Marie Richards, as chairman, was unintentionally omitted from the report of the Eastern Star Drama Club party in Saturday's paper.

Mission School Is Theme Of Fine Film Shown For Meeting

The annual thankoffering meeting of the Second Auxiliary Missionary Society was held in the Presbyterian church parlors on Friday afternoon.

Miss Kate Winger led in a most impressive devotional period, and personal expressions of gratitude were voiced as the offering was being taken. A loving tribute to the memory of Mrs. C. D. Crandall, a lifelong member of the society, was given by Mrs. W. H. Hegerty.

A motion picture, "Ngoni and Her People", depicting work at the mission school in Cameroun, East Africa, was both educational and inspirational, showing what is being accomplished through Presbyterian support in the mission field. The program was in charge of Mrs. Harold Banghart.

Mrs. E. W. Garrison was chairman for the social hour which followed, together with her committee of Mrs. H. W. Conarro, Mrs. M. E. O'Connell, Mrs. E. A. Dap, Mrs. Oscar Baird, Miss Elizabeth Mills, Mrs. Fletcher Parker and Mrs. Russell Norris. Mrs. Harold Warren and Mrs. Margaret Burtis presided at the tea table.

Members are reminded that there will be no December meeting and that the January session will be held at the home of Mrs. R. W. Mackay, 311 Poplar street.

Couple At Sheffield Anniversary Guests

Mr. and Mrs. Ira E. Heeter, 21 Van Ettan avenue, Sheffield, were honor guests Saturday at an anniversary party arranged at their home by their three daughters Mrs. Myron Rapp and Mrs. Richard Love, of Warren, and Miss Isabel Heeter, who resides at home.

Places were laid for seventeen at a table very prettily decorated with yellow chrysanthemums.

The bride and bridegroom of 30 years ago were remembered with many gifts from the guests, including the following who were from out of town:

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Heeter, Warren; Mr. and Mrs. Don R. Zimmerman, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Heeter, Miss Wendell Heeter and Peter Christo, Jamestown, N. Y., and Mrs. Heeter's brothers, Roy and Joseph Moore, of Sigel.

The afternoon was spent socially, with a light supper served before the guests left for their homes. All extended best wishes to the honored couple for many more happy anniversaries.

Old Charm in New Bouffants

Moulded waists and full-blown skirts lend these new evening gowns an old-fashioned charm. The material of the one at left is shimmering green satin, studded with bowknots of brilliant green sequin beading. The off-shoulder bodice has a cuffed bosom. The eye-catching gown at right, featuring an overslut-effect done like the rays of the aurora borealis, also indicates that the bouffant silhouette is with us again for evening, despite the competition of fashionable narrow lines. The reason is simple. Women still want to be alluring when dusk comes, and from that standpoint there is nothing so gratifying as the long full skirt. The black velvet is appliqued on white silk faille.

No Change In Crisis Reported

last week had not yet arrived but is expected soon. In the mean time, these officials said, Hull and the Japanese today discussed some subordinate phases of the better pending. They added that no further discussion has been arranged so far.

Cables from the Far East gave a grim background to this conference and to the consultation arranged between Mr. Roosevelt and Secretary Hull shortly after the arrival of the presidential train.

Foremost was the declaration of Premier Hideki Tojo Saturday that Japan "must purge" American and British influence "from East Asia with a vengeance." Last night the Tokyo radio broadcast the words of Vice-Admiral Shigehichi Koga, commander of the Japanese fleet in China waters, who was quoted as saying that "the China affair has now become part of the world war as a result of the so-called ABCD (American, British, Dutch, Chinese) encirclement."

At Hongkong the British military command took "precautionary dispositions" and placed the garrison "in an advanced state of readiness." War fears grew in the Philippines, where U. S. army and navy units were reported ordered on the alert.

The president's reaction was immediate. From his Pine Mountain cottage at Warm Springs, Ga., he talked twice with Hull by telephone. Then he ended his visit abruptly and started back here.

But that was more than enough time for the chief executive to preside Saturday at a dinner at the foundation for treatment of infantile paralysis victims and to make an informal speech in which he asserted gravely that "it was always" possible that by next Thanksgiving Americans "may be fighting for the defense of American institutions."

Tokyo, Dec. 1.—(P)—Domei said today that the Japanese cabinet had decided to continue negotiations with the United States, despite great differences in the viewpoints of the two governments.

The news agency reported the decision after a special cabinet session at which Foreign Minister Shigenori Togo outlined the progress of talks which have been under way in Washington.

Togo's statement, Domei said, made it clear that there is a "great difference in views between Japan and America," but it added:

"However, Japan probably will redouble efforts to make the United States reconsider Pacific problems by continued negotiations, it is understood."

Only last night, Togo, speaking at a banquet marking the first anniversary of the Japanese-Manchukuo-Nanking alliance, declared that the Washington negotiations had taken a most serious turn.

Manila, Dec. 1.—(P)—United States army and naval forces in the Philippines were held in readiness for any emergency today as news of the arrival of fresh British reinforcements in Burma, intense military preparations in Thailand and reports that the Japanese are pouring additional troops into neighboring French Indo-China.

It required approximately 670,000 tons of paper to make the paper bags produced in American factories last year, says the Census Bureau.

THREE INJURED IN AUTO CRASH AT STARBRICK

Three persons are patients in the Warren General Hospital as the result of an accident which occurred on route 6 at Starbrick about seven o'clock last night.

William Watt, 22, of 18 Schanz street, sustained a laceration of the right side of his head. Dorothy Dean, 23, of 119 Greaves street, Kane, suffered an injury to the right ankle and bruises and Frances Batchelor, 24, also of Kane, was treated for a laceration above the right knee and bruises.

According to police the accident happened when a Dodge coupe driven by Watt left the right side of the road and crashed head-on into a 1942 Plymouth coupe, which was operated by Miss Batchelor. Watt, who was traveling west, stated that his car was thrown to the left side of the road after he applied the brakes.

Damage from the accident is reported to be about $600.

TRAIN INSPECTION

It was reported here today that the new Empire State Express of the New York Central System, newest luxury train of that railroad, will be at Westfield, N. Y., on Thursday of this week from 8:30 to 9:30 a. m. for inspection by the public. The train will stop at the New York Central depot in Westfield. The new train will run between New York and Detroit via Buffalo and Cleveland.

HOUSE BURNS

A one-story frame house at Russell, owned by Mrs. Joseph Edwards, was destroyed by fire which was discovered about three o'clock this morning. Although no one had been living in the house, it was being used during the wintering season by Wallace and Wayne Edwards, of Erie, sons of the owner. It is believed that an overheated stove caused the blaze. The Russell Fire Department was summoned but the fire had gained such headway by the time it was discovered that the firemen were unable to save the structure.
